DETAILED ACTION

1. Amendment filed on 6/3/03 has been received.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

- (b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.
- 3. Claim 27 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by McCarthy (U. S. Patent no. 4,181,201).

Means for pulling 24, means for providing a tilting action 88, means for rotating 92

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
  - (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.
- 5. Claims 1-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Marshall et al (U. S. Patent no. 5,685,398) in view of McCarthy (U. S. Patent no. 4,181,201).

Marshall discloses: motor 34, field cup 82, armature plate 42, stationary plate 64, friction disk 66, compression spring 50,60, lever assembly 310 (lever 312,314) with first and second pivot points 316,318

Application/Control Number: 09/836,976

Art Unit: 3683

Marshall does not disclose a cam means to actuate the lever device. McCarthy teaches a cam means in combination with a lever means to disengage a motor brake ( see figures 1-3 handle 92, cam 88, lever 24). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use a cam means as taught by McCarthy in the brake of Marshall et al in order to provide a good mechanical advantage in a compact space. The handle of Marshall has a mechanical advantage due to its length. The longer it is the more advantage it has. The use of a cam would eliminate the need for a large handle sticking straight up.

Regarding claims 4,5,14 and 15, the device of Marshall does not disclose the tilting of the lever in the range of 1-10 degrees. The specific angle used to achieve separation of the armature plate and the friction disk is a design choice and therefore it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made. Regarding claims 9,10,19,20, the cam of McCarthy does not specifically disclose the side angle. The specific angle used is a design choice and therefore it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made. To support the fact that it is merely a design choice the examiner notes that the applicant admits that any angle or no angle at all may be used in the specification (page 11 lines 25-27).

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 6/3/03 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant states that Marshall et al teaches away from having a high mechanical advantage in a compact space. Examiner has admitted this position and that is why the examiner has made a 103 rejection instead of a 102 rejection in this and previous actions. Therefore, the argument is irrelevant. Furthermore, applicant admits that McCarthy teaches having a high mechanical advantage in a compact space.

Applicant argues that since McCarthy does not teach using an increasing larger lever to have a high mechanical advantage, it can not be combined with Marshall et al. This is a circular argument. A 103 rejection is made to introduce a different element that is not present in the original reference. But the applicant states that because the secondary reference has the different element that which is intended to be introduced by the examiner for the combination, the combination can not be made.

In response to applicant's arguments against the references individually, one cannot show nonobviousness by attacking references individually where the rejections are based on combinations of references. See In re Keller, 642 F.2d 413, 208 USPQ 871 (CCPA 1981); In re Merck & Co., 800 F.2d 1091, 231 USPQ 375 (Fed. Cir. 1986).

Applicant also claims that McCarthy does not disclose a cam but rather a "camengaging latch arm". While McCarthy does use this term, it is clear that the "camengaging latch arm" is structurally similar to the applicant's cam. Merely arguing that reference uses a different term for the same part does not define around the prior art.

6. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
